AMERICANS IN

AMERICANS IN MEXICO WORRIED.

Official reports that recent raids along the border had created alarm among American residents in Mexico City and elsewhere beyond the border were reflected today in a message received today at the Mexican embassy from General Carranza. It stated that excitement prevailed at the Mexican capital over the ominous signs along the border and asked Carranza to designate, to the chief what he had learned of the intentions of the Washington government toward Mexico. Reply: Arrendondo included a copy of Secretary Baker's statement announcing

Carranza's note demanding the call of the American expedition as for a statement of the purposes of United States and Secretary Lansing response as it has been drafted, understood virtually to restate Mexican plank in the platform ad-

ed at St. Louis. When the officials here learned of the night of the message to the embassy it was construed as a further evidence that the de facto government was struggling with elements of the army with which it has little control. Months the economic situation was so bad that Carranza has been attempting to secure foreign financial aid, but this is growing steadily worse. Uneasiness has been manifested in many parts of the republic, and agitators, whose purposes and affiliations are not well known here, have seized the opportunity to stir the smoldering American feelings throughout north-

The Washington government watched with growing alarm spread of food riots throughout Mexico and the indications that Carranza's army was losing his army and his people were waning from day to day. Up to time General Trevino served in the role of General Pershing last week, no movement of his troops toward the border would be treated as a hostile act, there was no indication as to Carranza's own intentions. His intentions still were unclear, although the fact that he is now personally directed Trevino's actions leaves little ground for speculation at that score.

PERSHING BUSY

CLEARING OUT BANDITS.

The question remaining to be settled is whether General Carranzado is going to the limit of ordering the attack on Pershing's troops. The report indicates that the president has no intention of altering his determination to keep the expedition where it is. It is also evident, however, that the administration is at present purpose of ordering military activities after the manner of the expedition in the limited zone in which Carranzado has been operating with significant success for some weeks. General Pershing's recent reports have indicated that he has succeeded in clearing out all organized bands of outlaws.

Some officials here have declined to look upon the Carranza and many of his other more hostile actions as attempts to the radical anti-American element in Mexico, without actually bring hostilities with the United States. They declare the Mexican government has gone to the limit each time, always fallen just short of the act that would have made certain. These officials believe Carranza is playing a game of bluff, that much as he might have a direct cause of the present situation.

ANDERSON'S EXPEDITION DISPERSES BANDITS AND REGRESSES RIO GRANDE

General Ricaut Promises to Capture and Punish Remainder of Outlaws, Threatens to Attack and Is Warned That the Consequence Would Be War.

ONLY ONE CAVALRY CHARGE IS MADE

Americans Return Without Having Suffered Injury to Man or Horse—Are Now Encamped Close to Texas Side of Border—Parker Thinks Action Will Have Salutary Effect on Conditions.

Brownsville, Texas, June 18.—Having accomplished its object, the dispersing of Mexican bandits who Friday raided Texas ranches and attacked a detachment of the Twenty-sixth infantry east of San Benito, Texas, and upon promises of the Carranza commander at Matamoros that he would run down and punish the outlaws, the fourth American punitive expedition to enter Mexico was withdrawn today. There were no American casualties. Two bandits were killed and two wounded in a rear guard action when the Americans began to withdraw.

The withdrawn expedition tonight is camped at San Pedro, Texas, about twelve miles west of Brownsville, awaiting developments after having, according to Gen. James Parker's official report, "cleared out the San Pedro-Ranchito district." These ranches included the Tahuachal ranch about ten miles west of Matamoros, which is notorious as a bandit haven. Military authorities tonight regarded the situation as fraught with the gravest possibilities. This is occasioned by the apparent fact that it was a detachment of about sixteen soldiers, led by a young supposed lieutenant, who led the rear guard attack on the Americans as they were leaving Mexico. This Mexican was killed and his costume was found to be composed partly of the uniform of a Carranza soldier.

TWO MEXICANS REPORTED KILLED.

Although the official report of the fight to army headquarters said one was killed and two wounded, it was confirmed by Matamoros tonight that two Mexicans were killed.

The attack on the rear guard was made after two troops and a machine gun troop of the Third cavalry had recrossed to the United States. Troops F and G, commanded by Lieutenants John Rende Jr. and Peabody, were back from the river, covering the retreat to the Rio Grande. The appearance of a small band of mounted men, who, on seeing the Americans, opened fire, Troop E quickly replied and was joined by Troop F. The firing continued for ten minutes at a range of approximately 500 yards. Two men were seen to fall from their horses, the supposed lieutenant went to the aid of one of those wounded, but was struck with two bullets, one in the back of the neck.

The cavalry then charged the Mexicans, who fled in the direction of Matamoros. The chase continued three miles when Maj. Edward Anderson ordered it halted, on orders from headquarters here to recross the river.

I am, in consequence, informed by the president to call into the federal service of the United States forthwith, through you, the following units of the organized militia and the National Guard of the state of Texas:

The Call of Patriotism

The world is passing through a crucible of fire. From millions and millions comes the cry for the protection of life, for bread, for shelter. And we, in this blessed land, are still living in peace, in security, in honor. And shall we not listen to that cry? Even here, where peace still prevails, our boys are at this very moment on the firing line. God forbid that any harm come to them. But if the die is cast, and they are called upon to protect us, we must be ready to meet them. Our honor, our boys are not entitled to look to us not only for sympathy, but for such activity on our part that, if needs be, there shall be ready the nurse to soothe the mortal pain, the bandage to stop the flow of blood, the physician to save the life of him who has died for the noblest of all sentiments—to live and die for his country, for his nation, for all that is dear and sweet to the hearts of those who are flesh of his flesh and bone of his bone.

The Red Cross is the expression of all these noble emotions, summed up by the one inimitable word—Patriotism. And we are called upon at the behest of patriotic duty to make all due preparations for the safety of our land and for the possible preservation of our own dear boys. Are there any amongst us who may refuse to heed this call?

The meeting will take place at the Young Men's Business League rooms at 8 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Stella Wren will lead the patriotic song and chorus. The theme is "Preparedness," and all of us, old and young, men and women, will be there for mutual counsel and co-operation, under the spell of the hour and in response to the call of America.

American Officers Fear More Raids Will Follow Quick Withdrawal of Men

San Antonio, June 18.—General James Parker withdrew from Mexico today the several hundred American troops he sent in near Brownsville yesterday in pursuit of bandits that had attacked a small detachment of infantry on the American side on the night before. On the way out armed men characterized by General Parker as bandits opened a sniping fire on the retreating column, making necessary a light rear guard action, resulting in the killing of one of the attacking party and the wounding of others. None of the Americans were hit. General Parker's explanation to General Funston of his withdrawal was that he dispersed the bandits, the object of the expedition being accomplished.

Unconcealed astonishment was shown at the department headquarters when it was learned that the Americans were back on this side of the Rio Grande. There was displayed no disposition to hit General Parker's explanation, and it was realized that a longer stay on the Mexican side probably would have caused a clash between the de facto government, the troops of the de facto government, and General Parker's order to Major Edward Anderson to move his troops back into Texas came after an exchange of messages by him and General Funston through Consul Garza. General Ricaut told the American general that the force which he regarded as an invading force would be attacked unless it withdrew. General Parker replied that the Mexican attitude of the Mexican officer was the best way to guarantee the continuation of the presence of the American soldiers in the vicinity. He told him that if attacked, he would stay, and give him to understand that in that case reinforcements would be sent in numbers sufficient to withstand any force General Ricaut might bring to oppose them.

General Ricaut became more conciliatory after receiving General Parker's communication, and began clearing the Mexican troops from the route the Americans would have to traverse on their way home. When the arrangements were completed, General Parker sent orders to Major Anderson to withdraw. The de facto government troops are reported to have not molested the Americans, and in the mind of General Parker there appeared no doubt that the bandits, snipers fired by bandits, and intention to run down the bandits. It had been assumed at army headquarters that General Parker would regard the risk of attacking the Mexicans as quickly; also it had been assumed that General Ricaut would carry out his threat to attack the Americans. Convinced that a clash would occur, General Funston and his staff had made all preparations to back up the expedition and to meet such other contingencies as might arise at other points along the border.

The withdrawal of the American troops was regarded by most army officers here as having warded off a clash but it was feared that the precedence of so quick a withdrawal might make more difficult similar operations along the border when again it becomes necessary to chase bandits across the line into Mexico.

OFFICERS FEAR MORE RAIDS WILL FOLLOW.

Whether the early termination of the chase would have a salutary effect on the bandit organizations that infest the border for hundreds of miles was one of speculation among army officers. A majority of them expressed the opinion that the effect would be to encourage them to make fresh raids, believing that if they could regain a footing on the Mexican side they would be safe from pursuit.

Few, if any, of the soldiers here believed that the raids had ended and General Funston and his staff were studying carefully all reports affecting the situation in which the places of anti-American demonstrations in Mexico, unexpected movements of Mexican troops, and the news of disturbances along the border were given over carefully today by staff officers and if any overt act of Carranza's troops should make it necessary, they would be set in motion without loss of time.

News that President Wilson had called out the state militia was received in press dispatches by General Funston. He

CZERNOWITZ FALLS: AUSTRIANS RETREAT INTO CARPATHIANS

The Associated Press summarizes the war news as follows:

Czernowitz, capital of the Austrian crownland of Bukovina, is in the hands of the Russians, and the Austrians who had held it are in retreat towards the Carpathian mountains. Hard fighting took place in the capture of the Czernowitz bridgehead and in the passage of the river Pruth, but when finally the Russians gained the right bank of the river the Austrians evacuated the capital, leaving one thousand prisoners and some guns in the hands of the Russians.

To the north, in Galicia and Volhynia, the Russians are meeting with desperate resistance on the part of the Austro-Hungarians and Germans, some of the latter of whom are being brought from the French front in an endeavor to aid in stemming the Russian advance.

While Petrograd asserts that the Russians are repulsing the counter attacks, pressing the Russian front in the Balkans and taking from them large numbers of prisoners and quantities of war materials, both Vienna and Berlin report victories for the armies in Galicia and Volhynia. Viennese reports say that north of the Lipa river in Galicia the Austrians put down a Russian attack, gaining ground and took 300 men prisoners, while Berlin asserts that along the Styra on both sides of Kolko and between the Lutsk and the Turysa sectors, the Germans under General von Linsingen repulsed Russian attacks and captured 3444 Russians and some guns.

French attempts by the Germans against the French positions northeast of Verdun met with no success, says the French war office, and the Germans suffered heavy casualties in their attacks—delivered against La Motte Homme and Thiaucourt sectors.

Again there has been considerable activity in the Argonne forest and the Vosges mountains, where the French in the former sector used their long range artillery effectively against German positions and in the latter German positions and in the latter sector put down a surprise attack southwest of Carpiac.

On the French front much of the fighting in the air has taken place. A British flyer downed a German machine and French aviators accounted for seven others. The French lost one machine.

As yet the Austrians have not withdrawn troops from the Italian front, the Russian offensive in the east, says the Rome communication, and they are continuing their violent efforts to break through the Italian lines. Their efforts, however, being put down with heavy casualties.

Austrian air squadrons have bombarded numerous towns in northern Italy.

ADDITIONAL WARSHIPS ORDERED TO GULF

In Issuing Call, Secretary Baker Announces That There Is No Intention of Sending More Troops Into the Land of the Montezumas, Except in Pursuit of Raiders—Carranza Believed Bluffing.

Washington, June 18.—Virtually the entire mobile strength of the National Guard of all states and the District of Columbia was ordered mustered into the federal service tonight by President Wilson. About 100,000 men are expected to respond to the call. They will be mobilized immediately for such service on the Mexican border as later may be assigned to them.

Gen. Frederick Funston, commanding the border forces, will designate the time and place for movements of guardsmen to the international line as the occasion shall require.

In announcing the orders, Secretary Baker said the state forces would be employed only to guard the border and that no additional troop movements into Mexico were contemplated, except in pursuit of raiders.

Simultaneously with the National Guard call, Secretary Daniels of the navy department ordered additional war vessels to Mexican waters on both coasts to safeguard American lives. At the war, navy and state departments it was stated that no new advances as to the situation in Mexico had come to precipitate the new orders.

Within the last two weeks, however, tension has been increasing steadily. The crisis presented by General Carranza's note demanding the recall of General Pershing's expeditionary force has been followed by a virtual ultimatum served on the American officers by General Trevino, the Mexican commander in Chihuahua. To this was added yesterday the possibility that American and Mexican troops had clashed across the border from San Benito, Texas.

ANDERSON'S RETURN A RELIEF.

Administration officials made no attempt to conceal tonight their relief for the safe return of Major Anderson's cavalry squad from Brownsville, son's cavalry squad from Brownsville, son's cavalry squad from Brownsville.

The troops crossed in pursuit of bandits in the face of intimations that they would be attacked if they did so. General Funston himself reported they anticipated fighting, presumably with Carranza troops.

Mobilization of the National Guardsmen to support General Funston's line will pave the way for releasing some 30,000 regulars for immediate service in Mexico in the event of open hostilities with the Carranza government. The guardsmen themselves could not be used beyond the line without authority of congress and until they had volunteered for that duty, as they are under the old militia law. The new law, which would make them available for any duty under the federal government, goes into effect July 1.

The entire mobile regular army of the United States, several provisional regiments of regular coast artillery serving as infantry, and the National Guard of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, now are on the border. In Mexico the figures have never been made public, but it is understood that General Funston has about 40,000 and probably 50,000 or more guardsmen, of whom 19,000 regulars are with General Pershing, scattered along his line of communications from Namiagua, Mexico, to Columbus, N. M.

Telegrams calling for the militia were sent tonight to the governors of all states, except the three whose guardsmen already have been mustered in, after an all-day conference at the war department, attended by Secretary Baker, Major General Scott, chief of staff, Major General Bliss, chief of the mobile army, and Brigadier General Mills, chief of the militia division, general staff. Brigadier General Combs, president of the army war college, also was consulted. Since Mr. Bliss did not find it necessary again to confer with President Wilson after his visit to the white house last night, it was apparent the decision to bring out the militia was reached then.

EIGHTY-EIGHT INFANTRY REGIMENTS.

There will be placed at General Funston's disposal two major general commands, two complete infantry divisions from New York and Pennsylvania are called out, as are fifteen brigades from other states. In all, eighty-eight regiments of infantry, with thirteen separate battalions and many separate companies, are affected, giving a total of 1148 companies, each of which must have a minimum strength of sixty-five men when mustered into the federal service. The total enlisted force of infantry, therefore, would not be less than $5,000 men.

Less than 500 companies, scattered throughout the country, will not be mustered, and the National Guard coast artillery companies have not been summoned. All of the field artillery, cavalry, engineer, and signal troops will be employed, as will many of the militia field hospitals and ambulance companies. The war department has on hand ample equipment and clothing to outfit and maintain this force.

The call applies to seventy-nine batteries of field artillery, ninety-nine troops of cavalry and one New York cavalry machine gun troop, twenty-five engineer companies and twenty-nine signal companies, all with full equipment already issued to them. Twenty-six ambulance companies and twenty-seven field hospitals also have been ordered made ready for entraining.

No indication was given at the state department tonight of the course to be pursued with regard to the reply to General Carranza's note demanding the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico. It was prepared last night by Secretary Lansing and is still in President Wilson's hands. It had been intended to dispatch it to Mexico City tomorrow by special messenger, but recent developments may change this plan.

AMERICANS IN MEXICO WORRIED.

Official reports that recent raids along the border had created alarm among American residents in Mexico City and elsewhere beyond the border were reflected today in a message received today at the Mexican capital from General Carranza. It stated that Carranza's note demanding the recall of General Pershing's expeditionary force had been followed by a virtual ultimatum served on the American officers by General Trevino, the Mexican commander in Chihuahua. To this was added yesterday the possibility that American and Mexican troops had clashed across the border from San Benito, Texas.

Carranza's note demanding the recall of the American expedition asked for a statement of the purposes of the United States and Secretary Lansing's response has been drafted, is expected to be virtually to restate the Mexican plank in the platform adopted at St. Louis.

When the officials here learned tonight of the message to the embassy, it was considered as a further evidence that the de facto government was struggling with elements in Mexico with which it has little control. For months the economic situation in Carranza has been attempting to solve without foreign financial aid, has been growing steadily worse. Uneasiness has been manifested in many parts of the republic and agitators, whose purposes and affiliations are not clearly known here, have seized the opportunity to stir the smoldering anti-American feelings throughout northern Mexico.

The Washington government has watched with growing concern the spread of disorders throughout Mexico and the evidences that Carranza's control over his army and his people was waning from day to day. Up to the time General Trevino served notice on General Pershing's troops except any movement of his troops except toward the border would be treated as a hostile act, there was no clear indication as to Carranza's own attitude. His intentions still are in doubt, although the fact that he is said to have personally directed Trevino's action leaves little ground for speculation on that score.

PERSHING BUSY CLEARING OUT BANDITS.

The question remaining to be settled is whether General Carranza will go to the limit of ordering an attack on Pershing's troops. There is no indication that President Wilson has any intention of altering his termination of the expedition when it is. It is also evident, however, that the administration has no present purpose of ordering renewed activities after bandits by the column, except in the limited zone in which had been operating with signal success for some weeks. General Pershing's recent reports have indicated that he has succeeded in clearing out all organized bands of outlaws in the vicinity of his camps.

Some officials here have been inclined to look upon the Carranza note and many of his other more or less hostile actions as attempts to placate the radical anti-American elements in Mexico, without actually bringing on hostilities with the United States. They declare the Mexican government has gone to the limit each time, but always fallen just short of the word or act that would have made a clash certain. Parker accepted this promise and ordered the withdrawal through Col. R. L. Bullard of the Twenty-sixth infantry, who had joined the expedition during the night.

The expedition recrossed the river on pontoon bridges without having suffered injury to man or horse.

General Parker's report to General Punston on the expedition, filed before the expedition began withdrawing, during which it was attacked by bandits from the rear, follows:

GENERAL PARKER'S REPORT TO PUNSTON.

"Major Edward Anderson and his squadron of the Third cavalry, supporting Lieutenant Newman's detachment which had followed the bandits across the river, cleaned out a nest of bandits on ranches opposite the San Pedro Rancho district. On the appearance of our command at the ranches the bandits scattered and escaped during yesterday afternoon and occasionally until midnight, since which there have been no further firing at our troops.

Expect Congress to Get to Work in Earnest

Washington, June 18.—With only eleven legislative days remaining before the end of the fiscal year, congress will go to work in earnest this week on the big appropriation bills, several of which remain to be disposed of before June 30, if a lapse in executive department budgets is to be avoided.

The house will take up the sundry civil bill, carrying $127,237,000, tomorrow, and democratic leaders hope to pass it early in the week. The appropriation bill, aggregating $157,460,000, probably will follow it.

In the senate, which has been marking time with sessions every three days during the national political conventions, the postoffice appropriation is the unfinished business.

Both senate and house committees have much miscellaneous work in prospect for the week.

Jaeger Garrison Enforced.

El Paso, Tex., June 18.—Apparent preparations were being made on the sides of the international border here tonight for possible hostilities. The Jaeger garrison was reinforced by the arrival of about 100 troops from Chihuahua, City, while Battery A, of the New Mexico National Guard, 140 men and four three-inch field guns, and the first of the state organizations recently mustered into federal service to cross into another state for duty.

Mexicans Guard Bridge.

Brownsville, Texas, June 18.—Armed Mexican soldiers tonight were stationed behind a barricade of steel rails on the Mexican side of the international bridge here, but they made no demonstration. Throughout the day they held positions behind the grade leading to the bridge.

Heavy guard was also being maintained tonight by the Mexicans at the Mexican end of the international ferry.

Deliver Mail by Auto.

Gulfport, Miss., June 18.—Delivery of mail by automobile between Gulfport and Hattiesburg was started by the government today, owing to the suspension of traffic on the Gulf and Ship Island railroad, caused by the strike of trainmen for increased wages, shorter hours and recognition of their union.

Germans Repulsed.

Paris, June 18.—Several attacks by the Germans on the French Deadman Hill position northwest of Verdun were repulsed, the war office announced this afternoon. They suffered heavy losses in futile attacks on French trenches in the Thiamont sector east of the Meuse.

Oklahoma Guard Ready.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 18.—One thousand Oklahoma militiamen, included in eight companies of infantry, one engineers' corps, one field hospital and two troops of cavalry, are ready to entrain for the mobilization camp at Chandler, Okla.

Commanding officers of every unit started tonight that they could leave their armories in twenty-four hours.

Refugees Come by Autos.

Nogales, Ariz., June 18.—All telephone and telegraph wires leading from the American to the Mexican side of the border have been cut in Sonora. Americans are being brought in automobiles to the border from Nogales, where an anti-American demonstration occurred today. Carranza authorities previously had refused a train for the refugees.

bandit and turn him over to the United States for punishment, because he fears to make a national hero and martyr of his former ally against Huerta. In this connection it was learned in diplomatic circles tonight that foreign agents in Mexico believe Villa to have been stricken with paralysis as a result of wounds received in the hills, and the intimation is that Carranza officials could find their hands on him in a few days if they so desired.

NOT PLANNING TO INTERVENE.

Even with the call for militia, however, it was declared emphatically tonight there was nothing to indicate that intervention plans were being considered. It was said in every official quarter on the fact that only defensive measures were in progress and it was asserted that if hostilities between the two governments are to follow they will come only from acts of the Mexican officials.

Senator Sheppard of Texas, received a telegram today from residents of San Benito and the Lower Rio Grande asking that the federal government furnish them with arms and ammunition for use in protecting themselves and their property. The request was submitted to the war department, with a suggestion by the senator that he be granted.

CITY NEWS BRIEFS.

Another busy week is ahead of the farmers of McLennan county. There was rain does not interfere. There was made interference from rain last week, but yet quite a lot of work was done.

There is an increasing tendency among the traveling men to stop in Waco over Sunday, and this city is getting to be more and more of a center for the knights of the grip.

The coming address of Hon. Henry C. Breckinridge of Kentucky will be given a suitable hearing in Waco. It is on the question of preparedness, and is one of a few talks which will be given at the public session, on the subject of "Postponing Old Age."

An iron building on Franklin street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, which was blown down recently, will not be rebuilt, as the city authorities do not think it best on account of the fire hazard and of the unsightliness in the downtown area. The building was on the south side of the street.

Usefulness of Good Cheer was the topic for the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at the Second Presbyterian church last night. The service was in charge of Miss Corinne Quinn and Lonnie Lunn. These two are well drilled Endeavorers and the program was a very successful one. The attendance was good, considering the warm weather.

A white man was arrested last night at 9:30 at his room at Third and Jackson on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday. Statements will be sworn against him today. The arrest was made by Officers James and Shepard, one of them having bought a pint of whiskey from the man, paying him with marked coins. When searched the coins were found on his person, and he was taken to jail, to await the filing of the statements. A suit case of pint and quart bottles of whiskey was also found in his room.

Revival in Marlin Closed Last Night

Marlin, June 18.—The revival at the Methodist church closed tonight with a stirring sermon by Evangelist W. M. McIntosh, who has been in charge of the meeting during the three weeks just past. Mr. McIntosh was assisted in the work by Mrs. Smith, and by the Hon. Bob Lewis, an attorney of Paris, Texas, who was converted about one year ago under the preaching of the Mississippi evangelist, and who, since then has been giving much of his time, at his own expense, to aiding in evangelistic work.

Saturday night after a week's work during cotton chopping season, saw several arrests for drunkenness in Mar-

Entire Louisiana Guard Called Out

Baton Rouge, La., June 18.—Louisiana's entire militia organization was called out in today's order from the war department. This consists of one regiment of infantry and one sanitary corps, one battalion of artillery and one troop of cavalry. According to Adjutant General McCoy, the present enrollment in the militia is about 1400 men and officers, the twelve companies of infantry being about 80 per cent of full strength. He believed the various companies could be mobilized at Alexandria from eleven towns, which they are located within forty-eight hours, but he thought the men would require several weeks' training before being ready for the field. The artillery battalion of three batteries is at New Orleans and needs about sixty men to bring it to full strength, and the cavalry troops of sixty men is at Jennings. General McCoy expected virtually all the enlisted men would respond to the call.

Huntsville Quiet; No Arrests in Lawler Killing

Huntsville, Ala., June 18.—Sheriff's posse searched through Madison and adjoining counties today for three men for whom warrants had been issued in connection with the murder here last week of Probate Judge W. T. Lawler, but no arrests of men regarded as principals in the affair had been made tonight. While the men were being sought a crowd estimated at three hundred gathered at the funeral service of the judge and two companies of state militia aided by special deputies remained on guard in Huntsville.

Huntsville remained quiet today. Percy Brooks, owner of the body of the judge was found in the Tennessee river, who was arrested last night, was taken to Birmingham. Two other men held as witnesses are in jail here.

Carnegie Man Relates Interesting Story of What Plant Juice Has Done.

Very few remedies have advanced as rapidly in the eyes of the public as has Plant Juice, the great herbal system tonic, which is being introduced throughout the country. It has only been on the market for a short time, but already there are many thousands who have regained their health by means of its use.

Wishing to give others who are suffering the benefit of his experience, Mr. George Mitchell, who resides at Carnegie, Pa., where he lives in the old homestead of his grandfather, built in 1794, said: "For years I was afflicted with stomach trouble. My mother, nearly 80 years of age and an uncle and aunt were also afflicted in the same way. Their advanced age made them feel the need of a good medicine, when they found Plant Juice and have been taking it for the past year, and they cannot speak too highly of its beneficial effect, as they have found it a splendid tonic. I have only used it for a short time and found it a splendid tonic for my trouble; in fact I can truthfully say I am entirely cured and have no more aches or pains. I will recommend it to all of my friends."

There are numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice can relieve. In fact, any of the following may be the effect of the stomach: indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headache, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, costiveness, coated tongue or a poor complexion. Plant Juice is sold in Waco at the Old Corner Drug Store.

"A TRIP THROUGH THE FACTORY"

Answering a few of the questions most frequently asked by subscribers concerning the working of a Telephone Exchange—especially the New Exchange just "cut in."

1. "How many operators are needed to work the new switchboard?"

There are 42 operators "positions" on the new board, which is about 100 feet long. During busy hours and when working to full capacity there will be 42 operators, besides the supervisors, information operators, the chief operator, and so on.

2. "When I call Central, do all the operators get my signal?"

No; your signal always comes in on the same position on the switchboard. Suppose your telephone number is 3942; your signal would appear on position 39. When you take your receiver from the hook to call "Central," a small electric lamp lights and shows your number on position 39.

3. "Can any operator call my telephone?"

Yes; any operator on the switchboard can call any telephone connected with the exchange. There is a connection for every telephone within reach of each operator. These connecting places are called "multiple jacks," and there are about 15 of them along the face of the switchboard for each straight line telephone—there will be about 90,000 of them altogether on the switchboard—so that every operator can reach one of them for any telephone.

If it were not for the multiple jacks you could not talk to more than 200 or 300 telephones, instead of being able to reach any one in town. Suppose your telephone comes in on position 39, and you want to talk to some one whose telephone "comes in" on position 2—which is about 85 feet away, and is certainly too far for your operator to reach, even if she had a connecting cord that long. If there were not a "multiple jack" for the telephone you want within her reach, she could not give you the connection at all. You would be limited, therefore, to connections with telephones on positions 38, 39 and 40, which are the only positions she can reach where she sits.

4. "You say there are 15 or more 'multiple jacks' on the switchboard, all at different places, for each telephone, so that any operator can reach one of them. When I call for a number, the operator connects me through one of these multiple jacks. Now, how does she know that some one else has not already been connected with that same telephone, through some other multiple jack, by some other operator?"

The connection between two telephones is made with a pair of "cords"—that is, covered wires—with a "connection plug" on the end of each. Before the operator places the connecting plug in any multiple jack, she touches the metal rim around the jack with the end of the plug. If she hears a clicking sound she knows that the line called for is already in use, so she reports to you "That line is busy."

5. "But sometimes I get a 'Busy' report on a telephone when I afterwards learn that the line was not busy. How can you explain that?"

It is likely that someone else was trying to call the same telephone at the same time—and therefore both operators got the "busy" click, for the click does not necessarily mean that someone is talking on the line, but merely that the line is in use in some way. Another operator may be ringing that subscriber for someone else at that time.

SCORES WEAK-KNEED TYPE OF PREACHER

DAWDLERS DISGRACE TOPULPIT

Declares Cry of Sensationalism and Political Parson Make Minister a Clam.

That particular species of the American parson designated as "a little rose-water, squirt gun" preacher, was roundly and severely condemned by Rev. F. P. Culver, pastor of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, yesterday morning in the course of his sermon on "The Mission of the Church."

"If there is one charge that can be justly made against the American pulpit, it is that lack of spine-ality in the affairs of civic righteousness which too often characterizes the ministry," declared Dr. Culver. He explained this fundamental lack as a failure to take sufficient interest in the things of this world. The speaker made it plain that he did not wish to drag the church untowardly into so-called "mire of politics," but he rebelled hotly against the idea of "religion" applying only to a small part of man's activity—by the limitation of public opinion—when religion intrinsically has to do with the whole of man's life and activity.

Dr. Culver charged that the "politically wise" try to use the lack of accusation as a "political parson" to keep the virile pastor off of the vital issues of the day which so affect man's lives and morals. Nobody takes offense at the unctuous delvings into ecclesiasticism, he thought.

PULPIT NEEDS FREE SPEECH.

The pastor insisted that no one denies the right of free speech to the "worst old set" in town, but the muffer is often put on the preacher. When the preacher begins coming down out of the clouds, he is branded as a sensationalist just as soon as his feet begin to touch solid earth, Dr. Culver said.

When the pulpit loses its stamina, the people lose their respect for it. He declared that the church doesn't take a stand against the liquor traffic was a spineless coward, and insisted that if the church members did not go to the polls and vote for good men for public office, they had no right to expect good government, nor had they any right to call themselves patriots. The coming elections were the tip for the pastor to stress this point.

MUST MAKE MORE OF THIS WORLD.

"We have been dreaming of heavenly visions and walking in Elysian fields and looking to the golden streets—letting the incompetent politicians run the country," asserted Dr. Culver. He lamented the lack of active attention of many capable men in doing their political duties, and declared that the church by its apathy in this direction had lost the co-operation of many good spirits who hoped to set the government right.

The initial opening that Dr. Culver used in exposing the average church's condition and its possibilities, was an unqualified denunciation of the mob law recently invoked in this city. He declared that the church must speak out on matters of this kind. The only reason that he had not spoken before was because yesterday was his first opportunity, he explained.

DENOUNCES WACO MOB INCIDENT.

"The crime itself was unspeakable and deserved the supreme punishment, but the good people ought not to let the whole community become murderers to execute one such fiend," he declared strikingly. He placed the blame for the deed on the officers and declared that the office of sheriff ought to be vacated in case of such an outrage of that kind against the community where any sheriff would allow it.

The pastor's attitude was not bitter, but vigorous. When he launched into his unvarnished statements on the lack of stamina of a certain church element, his full auditorium of listeners began to take keen notice of what was being said.

He said that the church was not to be a company of star gazers, but a congregation pledged to make the world better. It is not only the duty of the church to find the way to Heaven, but to lighten the way of the world; not to write political platitudes, but to see that the country's affairs are run in accordance with righteousness. He laid it down as a great and broad fact that the church has a mission to society as well as to the individual.

PREVENT AS WELL AS REFORM.

"We have a high and holy duty to drive out conditions which make criminals as well as to save a few criminals; we have it as a greater duty to stamp out the thing which makes drunkards as well as to convert a few of them; we must prevent human wreckage, as well as reform a few wrecks."

"For it is too late to close the stable door when the horse has escaped," he added, bluntly.

"You fellows sit still in your seats and take your medicine," interjected the preacher in a good-natured, serious way.

Dr. Culver closed with another warm payment of his respects to the "antiquated specimen of mediaevalism" in a twentieth century pulpit.

The demagogues had scared them from the vital themes, he said—they know no higher duty than chanting prayers.

"It is better to be a political parson than an ecclesiastical coward," he insisted, "and I had rather be called a sensational preacher than a sky pilot." As a parting salvo, Dr. Culver charged that the "little weak-kneed, watery-eyed, ecclesiastical piddlers have disgraced the pulpit."

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY DISTRIBUTES BY MILLIONS

S. B. Lane Speaks at First Presbyterian on Work of Placing Bibles Over World.

In the absence of the Rev. C. T. Caldwell, D. D., who officiated at the installation of the Rev. D. R. Reed as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Marlin last night, S. B. McLane addressed his congregation at the First Presbyterian church upon the work of the American Bible society, which is now conducting a Bible campaign in this city.

Among other things, Mr. McLane said: "Organized in 1816 within the narrow limits of the United States for its field, it has grown until its activities are now carried on in five continents and the islands of seven seas. It maintains nine printing centers and employs over 2000 distributors. It circulates the Bible in more than 150 languages and types. It issues thousands of Bibles for the blind; English in three systems; Arabic in two systems; Spanish, Armenian, Armenian-Turkish, Japanese, Korean, Siamese, one system each. Its total issues in 1915 7,150,911 volumes and during its 100 years of existence it has circulated over 117,000,000 volumes. It is thus seen that in all its years of service it has held strictly to and greatly accomplished the one grand work for which it was instituted—the missionary, worldwide circulation of Scriptures without note or comment."

"A TRIP THROUGH THE FACTORY"

Answering a few of the questions most frequently asked by subscribers concerning the working of a Telephone Exchange—especially the New Exchange just "cut in."

1. "How many operators are needed to work the new switchboard?"

There are 42 operators' "positions" on the new board, which is about 100 feet long. During busy hours and when working to full capacity there will be 42 operators, besides the supervisors, information operators, the chief operator, and so on.

No; your signal always comes in on the same position on the switchboard. Suppose your telephone number is 3942; your signal would appear on position 39. When you take your receiver from the hook to call "Central," a small electric lamp lights and shows your number on position 39.

3. "Can any operator call my telephone?"

Yes; any operator on the switchboard can call any telephone connected with the exchange. There is a connection for every telephone within reach of each operator. These connecting places are called "multiple jacks," and there are about 15 of them along the face of the switchboard for each straight line telephone—there will be about 90,000 of them altogether on the switchboard—so that every operator can reach one of them for any telephone.

If it were not for the multiple jacks you could not talk to more than 200 or 300 telephones, instead of being able to reach any one in town. Suppose your telephone comes in on position 39, and you want to talk to some one whose telephone "comes in" on position 2—which is about 85 feet away, and is certainly too far for your operator to reach, even if she had a connecting cord that long. If there were not a "multiple jack" for the telephone you want within her reach, she could not give you the connection at all. You would be limited, therefore, to connections with telephones on positions 38, 39 and 40, which are the only positions she can reach where she sits.

4. "You say there are 15 or more 'multiple jacks' on the switchboard, all at different places, for each telephone, so that any operator can reach one of them. When I call for a number, the operator connects me through one of these multiple jacks. Now, how does she know that some one else has not already been connected with that same telephone, through some other multiple jack, by some other operator?"

The connection between two telephones is made with a pair of "cords"—that is, covered wires—with a "connection plug" on the end of each. Before the operator places the connecting plug in any multiple jack, she touches the metal rim around the jack with the end of the plug. If she hears a clicking sound she knows that the line called for is already in use, so she reports to you "That line is busy."

5. "But sometimes I get a 'Busy' report on a telephone when I afterwards learn that the line was not busy. How can you explain that?"

It is likely that someone else was trying to call the same telephone at the same time—and therefore both operators got the "busy" click, for the click does not necessarily mean that someone is talking on the line, but merely that the line is in use in some way. Another operator may be ringing that subscriber for someone else at that time.

SCORES WEAK-KNEED TYPE OF PREACHER

DR. F. P. CULVER DECLARES THE CHURCH OF TODAY STAGGERED TOO MUCH.

DAWDLERS DISGRACE TOPULPIT

Declares Cry of Sensationalism and Political Parson Make Minister a Clam.

That particular species of the American parson designated as "a little rose-water, squirt gun" preacher, was roundly and severely condemned by Rev. F. P. Culver, pastor of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, yesterday morning in the course of his sermon on "The Mission of the Church."

"If there is one charge that can be justly made against the American pulpit, it is that lack of spine-ality in the affairs of civic righteousness which too often characterizes the ministry," declared Dr. Culver. He explained this fundamental lack as a failure to take sufficient interest in the things of this world. The speaker made it plain that he did not wish to drag the church untowardly into so-called "mire of politics," but he rebelled hotly against the idea of "religion" applying only to a small part of man's activity—by the limitation of public opinion—when religion intrinsically has to do with the whole of man's life and activity.

Dr. Culver charged that the "politically wise" try to use the lash of accusation as a "political parson" to keep the virile pastor off of the vital issues of the day which so affect man's lives and morals. "Nobody takes offense at the unctuous delvings into ecclesiasticism," he thought.

PULPIT NEEDS FREE SPEECH.

The pastor insisted that no one denies the right of free speech to the "worst old sot" in town, but the muffer is often put on the preacher. When the preacher begins coming down out of the clouds, he is branded as a sensationalist just as soon as his feet begin to touch solid earth, Dr. Culver said.

When the pulpit loses its stamina, the people lose their respect for it. He declared that the church that doesn't take a stand against the liquor traffic was a spineless coward, and insisted that if the church members did not go to the polls and vote for good men for public office, they had no right to expect good government, nor had they any right to call themselves patriots. The coming elections were the tip for the pastor to stress this point.

MUST MAKE MORE OF THIS WORLD.

"We have been dreaming of heavenly visions and walking in Elysian fields and looking to the golden streets—letting the incompetent politicians run the country," asserted Dr. Culver. He lamented the lack of active attention of many capable men in doing their political duties, and declared that the church by its apathy in this direction had lost the co-operation of many good spirits who hoped to set the government right.

The initial opening that Dr. Culver used in exposing the average church's condition and its possibilities, was an unqualified denunciation of the mob law recently invoked in this city. He declared that the church must speak out on matters of this kind. The only reason that he had not spoken before was because yesterday was his first opportunity, he explained.

DENOUNCES WACO MOB INCIDENT.

The crime itself was unspeakable and deserved the supreme punishment, but the good people ought not to let the whole community become murderers to execute one such fiend," he declared strikingly. He placed the blame for the deed on the officers and declared that the office of sheriff ought to be vacated in case of such an outrage of that kind against the community where any sheriff would allow it.

The pastor's attitude was not bitter, but vigorous. When he launched into his unvarnished statements on the lack of stamina of a certain church element, his full auditorium of listeners began to take keen notice of what was being said.

He said that the church was not to be a company of star gazers, but a congregation pledged to make the world better. It is not only the duty of the church to find the way to Heaven, but to lighten the way of the world; not to write "militant platitudes" but to take the country's affairs and run in accordance with righteousness. He laid it down as a great and broad fact that the church has a mission to society as well as to the individual.

PREVENT AS WELL AS REFORM.

"We have a high and holy duty to drive out conditions which make criminals as well as to save a few criminals; we have it as a greater duty to stamp out the thing which makes drunkards as well as to convert a few of them; we must prevent human wreckage, as well as reform a few wrecks."

"For it is too late to close the stable door when the horse has escaped," he added, bluntly.

"You fellows sit still in your seats and take your medicine," interjected the preacher in a good-natured, serious way.

Dr. Culver closed with another warm payment of his respects to the "antiquated specimen of mediocrity" in a twentieth century pulpit. The demagogues had scared them from the vital themes, he said—they know no higher duty than chanting prayers.

"It is better to be a political parson than an ecclesiastical coward," he insisted, "and I had rather be called a sensational preacher than a sky pilot." As a parting salvo, Dr. Culver charged that the "little weak-kneed, watery-eyed, ecclesiastical piddlers have disgraced the pulpit."

WACO GASSERS

NAVIGATORS END HOME STAY BY TAKING SUNDAY GAME FROM SHREVEPORT.

BATTLE PLAYS ROLE OF HERO

Little Left Fielder Saves Day Twice. Tanner Hits Home Run for Last Score.

It was "Big" Battle in left field yesterday. The hustling youngster who tends the sun garden made two great catches in tight places, and mainly for this reason, Jimmie Zinn chalked up another win, the score being 4 to 1. Although the big pitcher was mighty sparing with his hits, he was also mighty lucky. Ordinarily the Gassers, if given as many chances to score as they were given yesterday, would have piled up at least ten runs. In seven of the nine innings the first man to come up got on base. Zinn walked the first man in the first four and seven innings; errors allowed the first man to come up in the fifth and sixth, and hits were made by the first man up in the second and eighth innings. In five of these seven chances the sacrifice hit was successful and in the other two, the hit-and-run play went right. Thus, it will be seen that all seven of the men were on second with one out. But in spite of all these chances, it took an error to allow the only run the Gassers made.

GASSERS MAKE RUN IN THE FIRST.

This one run came in the first inning, when Becker walked, was sacrificed to second, went to third after James had made a spectacular catch of Schrader's long foul fly up against the club house, and scored when Conwell booted Barr's grounder.

In the two innings Zinn was saved runs because Syd Smith happened to start the inning. The Gasser foreman is a mighty good catcher and a fair hitter, but he is no longer fleet of foot. Carrull singled to center, but was held at third. In this inning three were on with two out when Schrader struck out. Smith was on first in the seventh when Kneaves hit a long double over the fence, which should have scored a fast man, but Syd had to stop at third.

This play put Zinn in his worst hole—third and second occupied and no one out. Perry hit to Tanner, who held Smith at third and ran Kneaves down in the line. Becker popped up, making the second out, but Zinn finally had to walk Carrull, filling the bases. Berry, who was sent in to hit for Schrader, after looking bad on two swings, knocked what looked like a clean-up blow to left. Battle was away with the crack of the bat, however, and just managed to hook the ends of his fingers on the ball. This one catch saved the game, but the left-fielder already had contributed a great catch off his shoe laces in the second inning. Zinn looked his best in the ninth, when he retired the Gassers in order.

FERRY NO NAVIGATORS FOR THE NAVIGATORS.

For three innings Perry pitched hitless and ran like a deer, but after that he offered no mystery to the Nav batsmen. They registered eleven hits for four runs in the last five innings, Conwell being the only one not to get his blow.

Waco's first chance came in the fourth when a single by Coyle, a walk to James and an infield hit by Tanner filled the bases with two out. Kuhn, who looked like a two-bagger off the boards and retired the side.

In the fifth, with one out, successive singles by Malmquist, Zinn and Battle off the sixth with a single, was sacrificed by Tanner and scored on Kuhn's single to left. With two down in the seventh, Battle hit three balls and one strike when the umpire called a strike that was over his head. Battle never bothered, but patted the next ball for a pretty single to left. Perry caught the runner off first, but Kneaves muffed Berners's throw and then Coyle doubled to right for the third score. The last score came in the eighth on a home-run blow by Tanner over the left-field fence.

Just to give the fans something to think and talk about, Wohlleben added greatly to the merriment and general hilarity of the occasion by bunting and beating off the first base man. If the hit of first baseman had pulled a pistol out of his pocket and shot Syd Smith in the ear he couldn't have caused any more surprise. Neither Perry nor Kneaves was in the game until Fred was almost to first and the play was over. The score:

County Democratic Committee Will Meet Today

The county democratic executive committee will hold this morning at 10 o'clock what may prove to be the last meeting before the state and county primaries in July, though if it should become necessary to hold another meeting it can be done. It is a busy time, however, and unless something of importance arises there may not be another meeting after the one today.

Chairman H. Elmer Brown of Ocoee will preside over the meeting today, and the notices were sent out by Secretary Charles H. Brown.

Assessments of candidates for the various places which they seek, and the possibility of some action on the double primary are matters which are in prospect for this morning, the first proposition being certain to receive attention, and the other a probability.

Ingram Preaches the Annual Memorial K. of P. Sermon

The annual sermon for the Knights of Pythias of the city was preached yesterday at 11 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Ingram.

The Knights of Pythias attended in large numbers, most of them coming out in a body, and the church was packed at this service. Rev. Mr. Ingram took as his text John 15:13. "For greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend." The minister eloquently and strongly emphasized friendship, benevolence and charity, and the discourse was heard with profound interest by those present.

State Dental Board on Examinations Meets Today

The state board of dental examiners will begin its session in Dallas today for the examination of applicants for licenses to practice dental surgery in Texas. Dr. A. F. Sonntag of this city is a member of the board. It is understood that the list of applicants to be examined is rather large.

Chamber of Commerce Directors

J. J. POWERS
Director and former president, Chamber of Commerce.

J. J. Powers is not only the head of one of the best known business concerns in Waco, the Powers-Kelly Drug company, "on Austin, at Fifth," but is a man who takes a keen interest in the business affairs of the city as anyone here, showing that he not only believes in a live city, but that he knows that this affects his own business in the ultimate analysis. Mr. Powers has only recently retired from the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce, where he rendered splendid service for Waco and central Texas, and is now a director of the organization, doing faithful and effective work there. Mr. Powers is a member of the school board, a director of the McKnight Sundry company, a member of the Huaco club and Country club, a director of the Ysop company of Detroit, Mich., manufacturers of pharmaceuticals, and is active in other business enterprises. He is not only always ready to aid Waco, but is watching for chances to advance this city still further in the city class.

Cotton Palace Directors Meet Tonight

President Tom F. Bush has called a meeting of the Cotton Palace directors for the Chamber of Commerce rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. Reports relative to the progress of the work for this year's exposition will be made, plans discussed and some additional committees probably will be appointed. The proposition of enlarging the space of the exposition buildings, new attractions, the band and other similar details essential to the success of the Cotton Palace will receive the earnest attention of the directors for the next two or three months. Early preparation has always been a motto of the Palace management. Ex-President W. J. Neale will report on band possibilities as seen on a recent trip to New York at the evening's meeting.

Riesel Stock Show Will Attract Many County Entries

Preparations are now being rapidly pushed for the annual stock show which will be held in Riesel June 28-29. For several years the show has attracted many stock raisers of the county and the show has a tendency to stimulate interest in this usually profitable farming line. Especially does the show attract much enthusiasm in the Riesel community. This being candidate year and the dates coming shortly before the primaries, the show will prove a mecca for the political aspirants.

VETERANS TAKE STAB AT LIQUOR TRAFFIC

PAT CLEBURNE CAMP HAS ROUSING MEETING AND GIVES A BLACK EYE TO LIQUOR.

TELL OF GREAT REUNION

Speakers Say That Saloons Often Mar the Gatherings of the Confederates.

Bearing strong and earnest testimony to the effect that the great success of the national reunion of the Confederate veterans at Birmingham, Ala., last month was due in great measure to the fact that no whiskey was to be had with which to tempt the weaker members of the veterans, and that this lack of anything debauching to drink, was backed up by kind and considerate treatment at the hands of all the people, the regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon of Pat Cleburne camp No. 222, U. C. V., came very near resolving itself into a meeting which had as one of its main objects, the condemnation of saloons, drink, and as the meeting closed Chaplain William Lambdin delivered a petition of thankfulness that in the meeting just held the men who were weak and helpless under the thrall of strong drink, had been spared the temptation and had returned to their families free from its baneful effects.

The veterans hammered drink hard during their talks, and called the names of many cities which had debauched some of the old veterans who had attended, one member present saying that he had visited one of the hospitals in one reunion in a city where whiskey was sold and had found that practically all cases of "sickness" there being many such cases, were not really sickness of the ordinary type at all, but were due directly and entirely to whiskey, double some deaths had resulted from the same cause.

WOULD RAISE EXPENSE MONEY.

Another matter which received attention yesterday was a plan which is being adopted in many places, but which has not been tried in Waco, and that is the matter of making up money by flag sales and otherwise with which to pay the way of veterans to the reunions in cases where they were unable to go, but were anxious to attend. It was stated by G. W. Tarrant that Houston last month sent fifty-two veterans to Birmingham in that way, paying their railroad fare and allowing each man about $8 expense money, this being ample, as all food and sleeping accommodations are furnished free. It was suggested at the meeting that Waco ought to have a move like this before the next reunion.

Dr. T. H. Lauck, one of the veterans, who is on his way to his old home in Virginia on a visit, made a little talk which almost moved the veterans to tears, so full was it of touching sentiment and tender reminiscence. Mention was made by veterans reporting on the Birmingham reunion of the movement for the Sons of Veterans to amalgamate with the older organization, the veterans, which came up in a report at the 1917 meeting; of the splendid work of the Boy Scouts at Birmingham, in looking after the aged veterans, and of the great movement which is proposed to carve out of Stone Mountain, near Atlanta, in honor of the deeds and valor of the Confederacy. It was one of the most interesting meetings in many respects held in some time.

After Chaplain William Lambdin had delivered an opening invocation at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the armory on Austin street, where meetings are held, the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Adjutant Bradford Hancock and adopted by the meeting.

The application of John W. Alston revived now should any foe arise to rick, R. S. Gould's command, Walker's division, Trans-Mississippi department, was acted on favorably for membership and made a brief talk to the veterans thanking them for the privilege extended.

Voluntary contributions were taken, amounting to $410, and the monthly report of Quartermaster John Moore showed that cash on hand amounts to $45.90.

The sick members reported were S. B. Humphreys and F. M. Gardner, the latter rapidly improving.

On motion of William Lambdin, the hour of meeting during the summer was changed from 3 o'clock to 4 p. m. William Lambdin, acting on behalf of T. H. Lauck of Co. K, 20th Virginia infantry, Third brigade, First (Stonewall) division, Second corps, A. N. V., presented a book to the veterans of the camp, General Jubal A. Early, Biographical Sketch and Narrative of the War Between the States." A vote of thanks was extended Dr. Lauck, and G. W. Tarrant, to say that the book was the library of the camp was being overlooked by some, and that it ought to be read more and added to still more.

WAR LETTER IS READ.

Dr. T. H. Lauck was asked to address the veterans and did so most feelingly. During the course of his remarks he read short excerpts from a letter written by a lady during the civil war, the letter breathing a fervent spirit of patriotism, unselfishness and loyalty beautiful to contemplate and helping them to stay "put" where they had been placed. He referred in a few words to the fact that he heard the volley fired which wounded and resulted in the death of the accomplished Stonewall Jackson, and of General Hill, and spoke of the rallying of the Confederates around General Ewell after the great Jackson had been called hence. His remarks were beautiful sentimentally, were expressed in choice language, and reached the hearts of the veterans and ladies present. He was generously applauded at the close.

where it was held, as he had been there when there were only two stores in the place, and noted the magic change which had been wrought. Mr. Cox said he had attended about twenty reunions, but this was, in his judgment, the best of all, while the people were more courteous and appreciative. He spoke of the plan which had been broached at the meeting to unite the older veterans and the Sons of Veterans in one organization, saying that he thought a report on this would be forthcoming at the next meeting. Mr. Cox spoke of the good work being done over the country by the Confederate and women in behalf of the monuments being erected. In the last named connection he spoke glowingly of the great undertaking which is being put in form for converting Stone Mountain, near Atlanta, Ga., into an amazing monument for glorifying the immortal heroes and perpetuating the scenes of bravery and during which marked the work of the Confederacy. He thought the mind of man could hardly conceive of a grander monument than this would be, and that it would be, when completed, a mecca towards which thousands would turn their faces to gather truth and inspiration. Mr. Cox also spoke of the unveiling of the great Shiloh monument next fall, this having cost about $50,000, and practically having been paid for already. It was his opinion that it would have been better to unveil it on the anniversary of the battle, April 6 and 7. He hoped many would be able to go to Washington, D. C., for the next meeting of the veterans in 1917.

G. W. Tarrant, next called on, said he could so Mr. Cox one better as to Birmingham, as he (Mr. Tarrant) had been on the spot where the city now stands when there was not a single hotel there, this being in 1849. He thought there were 10,000 Confederates at Birmingham, and yet there was only one fatality during the actual meeting, this resulting from a veteran going into a suffocating room and being overcome. The deaths at many other reunions, he said, had been much more numerous, with more sickness, and it was his opinion that this was because the few Confederates who were weak enough to yield to drink had been subjected to this temptation in other places, and had not been in Birmingham. He said one of the most appealing addresses of the reunion was delivered by Irvin Cobb, the well-known newspaper man, and the dramatic moment when Mr. Cobb had said that the meetings of the veterans nearly at an end on account of the age and increasing infirmities of the veterans. Mr. Tarrant thought that there might be half a dozen more such reunions, when the Sons of Veterans would have to take up the duty and privilege of setting together annually. It was his opinion that the people of Washington were going to do great things for those who attended the reunion there in 1917.

S. E. Carothers bore testimony to were not able to pay their way should Birmingham, said that he had favored the meeting place in Washington next year, complimented the Boy Scouts on their fine work in aiding the veterans, and said that one of the best things which had come to his view was the fact that there were no drunk men to be seen, this being a great thing for the veterans and for Birmingham.

COMMEND ABSENCE OF WHISKEY AT REUNION.

J. T. Rogers said that he had attended the reunion in Birmingham eight years ago and again this year, and there had been no extortion then or this time. He saw no drunkenness this time, and thought that this was one of the most desirable features of the gathering, and that it was mighty hard to get anything to drink there. He gave instances of other reunions where whiskey had been easy to get, and told of the bad effects on many of the veterans who were addicted to the use of it. In his opinion it was a fine thing to hold the reunions where it could not be had at all. Mr. Rogers said that several places had made up money to send the old veterans to the reunions, and that those here who the fine treatment accorded at Birmingham looked after next time through some plan which could be easily devised and practically handled. The speaker paid a high compliment to the work of the Boy Scouts in aiding the veterans at every turn, and who would not under any consideration take a cent for their services.

"I think the testimonies we have heard ought to make everybody vote for prohibition," said William Lambdin, referring to the remarks of veterans regarding the conditions existing in Birmingham as opposed to the conditions in many other places where reunions have been held, and there was a hearty assent to this.

J. T. Rogers, continuing his remarks a little further, said that Georgia's regulations against whiskey were also very rigid and well enforced. He visited there after attending the reunion. W. Tarrant told how the people of Houston had sent fifty-two veterans to Birmingham and had seen that each one had about $8 in money, by having a flag day, canvassing the city for small amounts and larger sums, the Daughters of the Confederacy doing this, and said that it could be done very readily anywhere.

After prayer by Chaplain William Lambdin, the burden of which was thanks that the day had dawned when a reunion could be held in a city where the weak were not subjected to the pitfalls of strong drink, the session, a remarkable one in two or three respects, adjourned.

He is not only always ready to aid Waco, but is watching for chances to advance this city still further in the city class.

Cotton Palace Directors Meet Tonight

President Tom F. Bush has called a meeting of the Cotton Palace directors for the Chamber of Commerce rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. Reports relative to the progress of the work for this year's exposition will be made, plans discussed and some additional committees probably will be appointed. The proposition of enlarging the space of the exposition buildings, new attractions, the band and other similar details essential to the success of the Cotton Palace will receive the earnest attention of the directors for the next two or three months. Early preparation has always been a motto of the Palace management. Ex-President W. J. Nield will report on hand possibilities as seen on a recent trip to New York at the evening's meeting.

Riesel Stock Show Will Attract Many County Entries

Preparations are now being rapidly pushed for the annual stock show which will be held in Riesel June 28-29. For several years the show has attracted many stock raisers of the county and the show has had a tendency to stimulate interest in this usually profitable farming line. Especially does the show attract much enthusiasm in the Riesel community. This being candidate year and the dates coming shortly before the primaries, the show will prove a mecca for the political aspirants.

Speakers Say That Saloons Often Mar the Gatherings of the Confederates.

County Democratic Committee Will Meet Today

The county democratic executive committee will hold this morning at 10 o'clock what may prove to be the last meeting before the state and county primaries in July, though if it should become necessary to hold another meeting it can be done. It is a busy time, however, and unless something of importance arises there may not be another meeting after the one today.

Chairman H. Elmer Brown of Osce will preside over the meeting today, and the notices were sent out by Secretary Charles H. Braun. Assessments of candidates for the various places which they seek, and the possibility of some action on the double primary are matters which are in prospect for this morning, the first proposition being certain to receive attention, and the other a probability.

Ingram Preaches the Annual Memorial K. of P. Sermon

The annual sermon for the Knights of Pythias of the city was preached yesterday at 11 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Ingram.

The Knights of Pythias attended in large numbers, most of them coming out in a body, and the church was packed at this service. Rev. Mr. Ingram took as his text John 15:13, "For greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend." The minister eloquently and strongly emphasized friendship, benevolence and charity, and the discourse was heard with profound interest by those present.
